

Born on April 5th, 1988, Jonathan Davies is a rugby sensation whose powerful runs, defensive prowess, and leadership skills have established him as a standout figure in Welsh rugby.

Davies' rugby journey began in Llanelli, where he quickly rose through the ranks, showcasing his great talent for the sport.

His breakthrough came in 2009 when he earned his first cap for the Welsh national team.

From that moment on, he became a key part of the squad, known for his commitment and dynamic style of play.

A key member of the British and Irish Lions, Davies played an instrumental role in the historic 2013 series win against Australia.

His combination of brute strength and agility made him a great force on the field, earning him admiration from fans and opponents alike.

The pinnacle of Davies' career came in 2019 when he played a central role in Wales' Six Nations Grand Slam triumph.

His leadership as captain during the tournament showcased not only his on-field skills but also his ability to inspire and unite his teammates.

Off the pitch, Davies is known as Jon Fox, due to his parents owning a pub called the Fox and Hounds just outside Carmarthen.

His boots are proudly displayed on the wall at Carmarthen Athletic Rugby Club.
